

Non-standard military implements in the modern world

Soumadeep Ghosh

Kolkata, India

Abstract

In this paper, I describe non-standard military implements
in the modern world.
The paper ends with "The End"

Introduction

Militaries in modern economies have non-standard military implements that serve specific purposes in the economy.

In this paper, I describe the non-standard military implements found in militaries of modern economies.

Packaged food

Military implement to enhance soldier performance on long-distance missions.

Poison pill

Military implement that poisons an individual/person of importance.

Mathematically modeled arsenal

Military implement to enhance capability and projection of forces.

X-ray gun

Military implement that is usually found in forces of modern economies.

Guard

Military unit(s) that protect an individual/person of greater importance.

Femme fatale

Military unit(s) that poison an individual/person of importance.

Sentinel

Military unit(s) that hunt and kill a specific target.

Thermobaric tank

Military implement that is usually found in land forces of modern economies.

Hovercraft

Military implement that is usually found in amphibious forces of modern economies.

Scrapyard

Military building that is usually found in modern economies to produce, assemble, park, repair, disassemble and salvage large military equipment.

War-gaming

Military implement that is usually found in strategic commands of modern economies.

The End